Could you be a Charity Learning Award winner?

At the end of every year, we confer awards on members that have caught our eye, for their outstanding work in L&D.

There is no entry form to complete, but if you'd like to be in the running to win an award later this year, here are some things that you can do:

1. Speak to your membership manager about the work that you are doing
2. Volunteer to present a case study at a CLC event
3. Help us create a written case study highlighting the work that you do - we'll do the writing bit!
4. Run a workshop at a members' meeting, to share your expertise
5. Offer to write some top tips, to share with other members
6. Put yourself forward for a video interview for the charity spotlight on Learning Now TV
7. Lead a networking session at a CLC event

Why bother? Whether you win an award or not, getting involved in the Consortium can help you:

- ☑ Reflect on your work and see exactly how much you've achieved
- ☑ Highlight what you do within your organisation
- ☑ Gain attention outside of your organisation
- ☑ Feel great about sharing and helping others
- ☑ Make connections with peers, who can help you in return
- ☑ Get recognised for all your hard work
